

MARIA PETERS

Improvise
Comedy Performer
Professional Development
Trainer

Maria's professional journey has taken her across the globe, from her beginnings as a radio show host in New Zealand to her ventures in improvised comedy at Edinburgh's Fringe Festival and on stage in London's West End.

Her unique style of communication skills coaching has been sought after from the Estonia to Italy to Saudi Arabia.

Leveraging her expertise, Maria has been brought in by global brands such as Facebook (Meta), BP, and Johnson & Johnson and Roche to deliver Presentation, Storytelling and Creative Thinking training programs.

Maria also boasts extensive experience training with organisations in the culture and heritage sector. Including:

- The National Gallery
- The Museum of London
- London Transport Museum

She spent five years working in the learning team at the Science Museum, where she excelled in developing learning programs before creating her own communications training consultancy.

Maria has also designed and delivered training in collaboration with notable charities such as:

- Client Earth - Environmental Law Charity
- St Mungo's - Homeless Prevention Charity
- The Floating Classroom - Education Charity

One of Maria's key talents lies in her combined experience in professional education, performance and theatre.

She has taught with many esteemed academic organisations, notably:

UAL - University of the Arts London
INSEAD - Business School
Mountview Academy of Theatre Arts

With her diverse background in comedy, writing, and performance with the BBC, UKTV and at the Edinburgh Fringe Festival, Maria brings a unique and valuable perspective to all of her collaborations.

FEEDBACK...

"Incredibly useful. I even found myself using the techniques yesterday while talking through an issue a colleague was having!"

Alex Edwards, Museum of London

"Motivating, entertaining and inspiring."

Markus Thomas, Roche

"It was an inspiring experience. Wonderfully presented and structured."

Kristine Janson, European Haemophilia Consortium

"Engaging, Inspiring and so practical"
